Wilcox & Gibbs

NEW AUTOMATIC Sewing Machines

The manufacturers of this machine have sold their goods to no one in the islands excepting our firm. Parties representing that they have the Wilcox & Gibbs machine are trying to palm off on an unsuspecting public very inferior article which resembles the Automatic in every way but in being Automatic in action. The Wilcox & Gibbs is the only Automatic Sewing Machine in the world. So call all Automatics sold by parties other than us or our agents are frauds. Do not let yourself be talked into buying a machine that is just the same as the Wilcox & Gibbs New Automatic, because it is cheaper.

CAUGHT ON THE SHIP

Actor Avery Would be an Absconder.

TAKEN OFF THE AUSTRALIA

Collector for King Brothers and Former Southwell Singer
a Defaulter.

Eugene Avery, collector for King Brothers, the Hotel street photographer, was arrested yesterday afternoon as he was about to sail on the Australia for the Mainland with $72 of King Brothers' funds. A police officer served the warrant upon the absconder collector while the latter was in hiding in the bow stowage of the vessel, with a telescope valise near by in which most of his belongings were packed for hasty flight.

Avery came to Honolulu with the Southwell Opera Company and played for sometime at the Orpheum Theater until that organization departed for other scenes of conquest. Avery was left behind and his financial status was not of the best when the rest of the company waved him a last goodbye. W. H. King was applied to for work and after satisfying himself as to the ability of the man, he engaged him to assist in the general office work and collect outstanding bills. About two weeks ago, Avery asked Mr. King to advance him some money on his return ticket to San Francisco, but this Mr. King refused to do. Avery lived at the Orpheum hotel but times were not prosperous with him. Yesterday Mr. King had an inkling that his collector was about to resign his position without the formality of telling Mr. King about it. King came to believe that Avery intended his resignation should come to light after the Australia was far out at sea.

Yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock Mr. King sent a friend of Avery's to the latter's room in the hotel and there found his trunk packed and strapped ready for the baggage man. Then the same friend was sent to Avery in the store, and asked for a settlement of his accounts. He has been collecting many bills since the first of the month, but his returns were unsatisfactory to the proprietors. Avery said he had nothing to turn over at that time, and did not have a "bean" of the company's money.

Nevertheless Mr. King's suspicions became aroused and a warrant of arrest was sworn out charging Avery with being guilty of "violating section 157 of the Penal Laws during one month past to and including the 7th day of August, 1900, and having in his keeping and possession certain moneys belonging to King Brothers fraudulently conveying and disposing of the same to his own use and benefit."

The Australia was watched during the afternoon and at 3 o'clock, Mr. King accompanied by the officer with the warrant went through the ship. Suddenly they espied Avery hiding away in the bow of the vessel in the steerage quarters. He was completely surprised and remarked that "it was all up" with him. He stated then and there, however, that he hadn't a cent on him or in his baggage, and they "couldn't expect to get blood out of a turnip." Despite his protestations of innocence he was escorted up Fort street afoot in the keeping of the officer. He was attired in a dark suit of clothes, white yacht cap, and carried his little telescope valise.

At the station when searched his pockets gave up 80 cents in silver, a pocket wallet with cards and memorandums therein, a tobacco pouch, a flute made of bamboo stick, home-made, and morphine outfit which he begged the officers to allow him to keep. The most startling disclosure was contained in a white silk handkerchief which was taken from an inner coat pocket. It was tied in a knot and when open, there lay five 10-dollar gold pieces and two fives—$60 all told. When this was laid out on the counter, Avery said they could put him anywhere, he didn't care.

George D. Gear was sent for by Avery's friends and had a consultation in regard to his affairs. Later Avery was admitted bail in the sum of $300, a bond being furnished by Mr. Fullerton.

LOSES A FINGER.

Mrs. Otto Isenberg Has Operation Performed.

While in San Francisco, shortly before her return to this city Mrs. Otto Isenberg met with a peculiar accident as a result of which she had to have the third finger of her right hand amputated yesterday. In some manner Mrs. Isenberg drove a needle into her finger while at the Occidental hotel in San Francisco.

The needle made a painful wound but not a serious one and little was thought of it at the time. But during the trip to the islands the finger grew worse and on arriving here Mrs. Isenberg called Dr. Hoffman's attention to it. He treated the whole hand but blood poisoning had set in and it was decided yesterday that amputation would be necessary. So the operation took place immediately Drs. Wood and Hoffman performing it.

TWO BAD TARS.

Iroquois Sailors who Made Poor use of Shore Leave.

Two jacktars of the United States tug Iroquois went on a rampage Monday night, filled their stomachs with a ballast of liquor, disturbed the Salvation Army meeting at the barracks, and later were tied up at the police station as derelicts in the path of peaceful citizens.

Yesterday they were fined $2 and costs each, and went their way for another re-lacing. Beyond the charge of drunkenness against Peterson there was another for profanity. This latter consisted in his having used obscene language during the Salvation meeting, two of the ladies testifying on the witness stand that the language was vulgar. Peterson was assessed $20.

In a Ditch for Five Hours.

Some young men who were out celebrating early yesterday morning got into pilikia on Wilder avenue, near the corner of Makiki street some time during the early morning hours. They had a lively horse belonging to Charles Bellina and drove the animal into an open sewer ditch. Being unable to extricate the beast they unhitched it from the carriage and notified the stable and went home. The horse remained in the ditch for over five hours, being removed shortly after 7 o'clock by the stable people assisted by neighbors.

HIS HOME HIS CASTLE.

Kaanaana Informed That he Cannot Annoy His Neighbors.

Judge Wilcox takes the stand that a man's house is not always his castle. If he make himself a nuisance, being on his own premises is no safeguard for him.

Alexander Kaanaana found this out in the Police Court yesterday morning, where he was fined $10 and costs for using profane language.

The defendant claimed he had a perfect right to swear in his own yard, but the judge reminded him that his voice was far-reaching and he therefore stood within the pale of the law.

ANNABEL LEE ON THINGS HAWAIIAN

The Fair Authoress Talks of us Before Settling for Home.

Miss Annabel Lee, the correspondent of the San Francisco Call, who has been staying in Honolulu for the past six weeks, returned to the Coast yesterday on the Australia.

During her visit Miss Lee—who is Mrs. White in real life—visited the leper settlement at Molokai and traveled extensively on the island of Hawaii.

Miss Lee is charmed with the islands and hopes to return again. Honolulu people, she said, had treated her very hospitably and she would never forget their kindness.

One thing Miss Lee declared herself disappointed at was in not finding the natives living in their primal state in Honolulu. She said she had to go all the way to Hawaii before she could find the natives eating, talking and living in the way their Creator had intended them to. It was a great pity, she said, to see them so much intermingling with the haoles.

The society of Honolulu impressed Miss Lee very favorably.

"The best people here," said she, "are so unaffected in their social life. There are no frills on them. At the Coast, society is of the airy-fairy kind; in Honolulu, society is founded on a firmer, truer basis, and the wayfarer and the pilgrim are not slow to perceive the difference."

Miss Lee takes back with her a souvenir of her sojourn here a large quantity of curios. When she arrives at her home she says that she will establish a Hawaiian corner in her studio.

THE WALLS OF PEKING.

Writing on the city of Peking, the London Engineer says that the walls of the Tartar city are of an average height of fifty feet, but portions of the north wall reach the height of sixty-one feet. Their average width is about forty feet, but they have been built so irregularly that in places a width of fifty-seven feet is found, in others a width of only twenty-two feet. The outer face of the wall is perpendicular, while its inner face slopes, in some places very considerably. Parapets are erected on both inner and outer faces of the wall, those on the latter being loopholes and crenellated. At intervals of about fifty or sixty yards are large buttresses, every sixth being of much larger size than the others; the smaller ones are about fifteen feet to twenty feet square. Part of the inner brick lining having fallen away from the north wall, an opportunity was afforded for observing its construction. Near the gates the walls are occasionally faced with stone, but in other parts by immense bricks, which bear a strong resemblance to stone. The space between the facings is filled up, first by a solid foundation of concrete of some ten feet in depth, then by a layer of well-rammed earth, another layer of concrete, and another layer of earth succeed, the latter being paved with large blocks of granite, which form the terreplein. The earth to fill in the wall was taken from the ditch which surrounds the city. The concrete resisted all the efforts of our sappers to form a trench on the terreplein during the last war. Each of the gates has a buttress on either side connected with a semi-circular wall which thus forms an enclave. That of the central south gates is larger than any of the others, and is the only one with three entrances—the central gate being for the use of the emperor or his family alone. The arches of the gateways are well built.

UNRESIGNED.

It seems but yesterday,
I begged to stay
And play,
A little moment more.
The sun was scarcely down,
The busy town
Not hushed yet from the labors of the day.
It seemed too soon to put
The toys away.

Today, an older child,
I stand
Upon the edge of Spirit Land,
And watch the shadows fall.
Father, again I pray
To stay.

It seems to soon to put Earth's joys away.
—Ethel Patterson Wright.

"Mrs. Youngly is going to sue for a divorce." "On what ground?" "Intolerable cruelty. Last week her husband locked her for two hours in the same room with five new frocks and two new hats—and no mirror."

"I am an anti," declared Sammy Snaggs, whose father is an ardent expansionist. "You are what?" demanded the elder Snaggs, with great surprise. "I am an anti," repeated Sammy, "an anti-spankationist."

"See here, landlord, I've lost all my money and a handful of matches besides—can't you help me out of my difficulty for a day or two?" "Certainly—here's another box of matches!"
